Landæus Trio

For the last five years Landæus Trio has specialized in collaborating with a wide range of Swedish top artists performing standards, pop tunes, electronica and free jazz. They always bring the same joyous zeal and dedication to the music, whether they are playing with an old jazz legend or a rising pop star. Their unpretentious attitude and easygoing nature, coupled with their creativity and depth of musical understanding, make them ideal for accompanying any artist.

The trio is an original and capturing band in it's own right, as is shown on their latest album Into Life - "It is supreme music, that testifies both dedication and breadth of expression, and is brilliantly performed...makes one think just as much of Monk and an early Keith Jarrett as gospel and dub." In addition to their latest album Into Life, Landæus Trio released two more albums in 2014: The unconventional yet hard swinging vocal jazz album Sing by The Other Woman (aka Ellekari Sander & Landæus Trio) and Four Lamentations and One Wicked Dream Of Innocence - a collaboration with renowned free jazz saxophonist Martin Küchen.

Bio

Notoriously playful pianist Mathias Landæus has released ten albums as a leader. He lived in New York in the 1990's, where he studied with Jaki Byard and Richie Beirach, among others. After returning to Sweden he became an important figure on the Stockholm jazz scene. In addition to his inspiring work as a composer and musician, he has had a crucial role in building community and bringing musicians together by starting live scenes like the still influential Glenn Miller Café in Stockholm, and more recently the club Underground in southern Sweden. His lyrical touch and original quirky style have earned him a reputation as one of the most exciting pianists in Sweden.
